Activities On and Off the Job

On and off the job activities that reinforce learning

Attend Internal Presentations, Briefings
 Find opportunities to listen and to learn about what is going on in your area and other units.
 ★★★★★

Lunch with an Associate
 The people you work with can be a great resource. Many enjoy the opportunity to share knowledge and will gladly offer you time - perhaps over lunch. Be clear on what you want to learn and let your teacher know ahead of time.

Solicit Advice from Others
 Find opportunities to consult with other individuals such as managers, peers, subject matter experts, etc. Ask for advice in areas of their expertise. Try out their suggestions and test if they increase your performance and productivity.

Practice Estimating (Home/Office Tasks)
 Start with smaller tasks (1-2 hours). Write the estimate down; at completion, check estimate vs. actual and learn from that experience. Continue with longer projects, estimating and monitoring actual work effort and elapsed time.

Participate in Planning an Event or a Project
 Practice makes perfect; ask to play an active or leading role in planning a project or event.

View how many learning assets are mapped to each competency and their links and descriptions, and check ratings from other employees.
